SEAN F. MCAVOY, CLERK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

TIMOTHY C.,

Plaintiff,

vs.

COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY,

Defendant.

No. 2:17-cv-00434-MKD

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT AND GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

ECF Nos. 15, 16

Before the Court are the parties' cross-motions for summary judgment. ECF Nos. 15, 16. The parties consented to proceed before a magistrate judge. ECF No. 7. The Court, having reviewed the administrative record and the parties' briefing, is fully informed. For the reasons discussed below, the Court denies Plaintiff's Motion, ECF No. 15, and grants Defendant's Motion, ECF No. 16.

JURISDICTION

The Court has jurisdiction over this case pursuant to 42 U.S.C. §§ 405(g); 1383(c)(3).

STANDARD OF REVIEW

A district court’s review of a final decision of the Commissioner of Social Security is governed by 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). The scope of review under § 405(g) is limited; the Commissioner’s decision will be disturbed “only if it is not supported by substantial evidence or is based on legal error.” Hill v. Astrue, 698 F.3d 1153, 1158 (9th Cir. 2012). “Substantial evidence” means “relevant evidence that a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion.” Id. at 1159 (quotation and citation omitted). Stated differently, substantial evidence equates to “more than a mere scintilla[,] but less than a preponderance.” Id. (quotation and citation omitted). In determining whether the standard has been satisfied, a reviewing court must consider the entire record as a whole rather than searching for supporting evidence in isolation. Id.

In reviewing a denial of benefits, a district court may not substitute its judgment for that of the Commissioner. Edlund v. Massanari, 253 F.3d 1152, 1156 (9th Cir. 2001). If the evidence in the record “is susceptible to more than one rational interpretation, [the court] must uphold the ALJ’s findings if they are supported by inferences reasonably drawn from the record.” Molina v. Astrue, 674

1 F.3d 1104, 1111 (9th Cir. 2012). Further, a district court “may not reverse an 2 ALJ’s decision on account of an error that is harmless.” Id. An error is harmless
3 “where it is inconsequential to the [ALJ’s] ultimate nondisability determination.”
4 Id. at 1115 (quotation and citation omitted). The party appealing the ALJ’s 5 decision generally bears the burden of establishing that it was harmed. Shinseki v.
6 Sanders, 556 U.S. 396, 409-10 (2009).

7 FIVE-STEP EVALUATION PROCESS

8 A claimant must satisfy two conditions to be considered “disabled” within 9 the meaning of the Social Security Act. First, the claimant must be “unable to 10 engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable 11 physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which 12 has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than twelve 13 months.” 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(1)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(A). Second, the claimant’s 14 impairment must be “of such severity that he is not only unable to do his previous 15 work[,] but cannot, considering his age, education, and work experience, engage in 16 any other kind of substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy.”
17 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(2)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(B).

18 The Commissioner has established a five-step sequential analysis to 19 determine whether a claimant satisfies the above criteria. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 20 404.1520(a)(4)(i)-(v), 416.920(a)(4)(i)-(v). At step one, the Commissioner

1 considers the claimant's work activity. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(i), 2 416.920(a)(4)(i). If the claimant is engaged in "substantial gainful activity," the 3 Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 4 404.1520(b), 416.920(b).

5 If the claimant is not engaged in substantial gainful activity, the analysis 6 proceeds to step two. At this step, the Commissioner considers the severity of the 7 claimant's impairment. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(ii), 416.920(a)(4)(ii). If the 8 claimant suffers from "any impairment or combination of impairments which 9 significantly limits [his or her] physical or mental ability to do basic work 10 activities," the analysis proceeds to step three. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(c), 11 416.920(c). If the claimant's impairment does not satisfy this severity threshold, 12 however, the Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R.
13 §§ 404.1520(c), 416.920(c).

14 At step three, the Commissioner compares the claimant's impairment to 15 severe impairments recognized by the Commissioner to be so severe as to preclude 16 a person from engaging in substantial gainful activity. 20 C.F.R. §§ 17 404.1520(a)(4)(iii), 416.920(a)(4)(iii). If the impairment is as severe or more 18 severe than one of the enumerated impairments, the Commissioner must find the 19 claimant disabled and award benefits. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(d), 416.920(d).

1 If the severity of the claimant's impairment does not meet or exceed the 2 severity of the enumerated impairments, the Commissioner must pause to assess 3 the claimant's "residual functional capacity." Residual functional capacity (RFC), 4 defined generally as the claimant's ability to perform physical and mental work
5 activities on a sustained basis despite his or her limitations, 20 C.F.R. §§ 6 404.1545(a)(1), 416.945(a)(1), is relevant to both the fourth and fifth steps of the 7 analysis.

8 At step four, the Commissioner considers whether, in view of the claimant's 9 RFC, the claimant is capable of performing work that he or she has performed in 10 the past (past relevant work). 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(iv), 416.920(a)(4)(iv).
11 If the claimant is capable of performing past relevant work, the Commissioner 12 must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(f), 416.920(f).
13 If the claimant is incapable of performing such work, the analysis proceeds to step 14 five.

15 At step five, the Commissioner considers whether, in view of the claimant's 16 RFC, the claimant is capable of performing other work in the national economy.
17 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(v), 416.920(a)(4)(v). In making this determination, 18 the Commissioner must also consider vocational factors such as the claimant's age, 19 education and past work experience. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(v), 20 416.920(a)(4)(v). If the claimant is capable of adjusting to other work, the

1 Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§
2 404.1520(g)(1), 416.920(g)(1). If the claimant is not capable of adjusting to other 3 work, analysis concludes with a finding that the claimant is disabled and is 4 therefore entitled to benefits. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(g)(1), 416.920(g)(1).

5 The claimant bears the burden of proof at steps one through four above.
6 Tackett v. Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 1999). If the analysis proceeds to 7 step five, the burden shifts to the Commissioner to establish that (1) the claimant is 8 capable of performing other work; and (2) such work “exists in significant 9 numbers in the national economy.” 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1560(c)(2), 416.960(c)(2); 10 Beltran v. Astrue, 700 F.3d 386, 389 (9th Cir. 2012).

11 “A finding of ‘disabled’ under the five-step inquiry does not automatically 12 qualify a claimant for disability benefits.” Parra v. Astrue, 481 F.3d 742, 746 (9th 13 Cir. 2007) (citing Bustamante v. Massanari, 262 F.3d 949, 954 (9th Cir. 2001)).

14 When there is medical evidence of drug or alcohol addiction (DAA), the ALJ must 15 determine whether the drug or alcohol addiction is a material factor contributing to 16 the disability. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1535(a), 416.935(a). In order to determine 17 whether drug or alcohol addiction is a material factor contributing to the disability, 18 the ALJ must evaluate which of the current physical and mental limitations would 19 remain if the claimant stopped using drugs or alcohol, then determine whether any 20 or all of the remaining limitations would be disabling. 20 C.F.R. §§

1 404.1535(b)(2), 416.935(b)(2). If the remaining limitations would not be 2 disabling, drug or alcohol addiction is a contributing factor material to the 3 determination of disability. Id. If the remaining limitations would be disabling, 4 the claimant is disabled independent of the drug or alcohol addiction and the 5 addiction is not a contributing factor material to disability. Id. Plaintiff has the 6 burden of showing that drug and alcohol addiction is not a contributing factor 7 material to disability. Parra, 481 F.3d at 748.

8 ALJ'S FINDINGS

9 On February 25, 2014, Plaintiff filed applications for Title II disability
10 insurance benefits and Title XVI supplemental security income, Tr. 189-97, 11 alleging an amended onset date of December 31, 2008, Tr. 44-45. The applications 12 were denied initially, Tr. 129-36, and on reconsideration, Tr. 139-42. Plaintiff 13 appeared at a hearing before an administrative law judge (ALJ) on June 2, 2016.
14 Tr. 40-66. On August 1, 2016, the ALJ denied Plaintiff's claims. Tr. 17-39.

15 At step one, the ALJ found Plaintiff had not engaged in substantial gainful 16 activity since December 31, 2008, the amended alleged onset date. Tr. 23. At step 17 two, the ALJ found Plaintiff had the following severe impairments: depressive 18 disorder, anxiety disorder, and polysubstance dependence (alcohol, marijuana, and 19 methamphetamine by history). Id. At step three, the ALJ found Plaintiff's 20 impairments, including the substance use disorders, medically equal sections

1 12.09, 12.04 and 12.06 of 20 C.F.R. Par 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1. Tr. 27.

2 However, the ALJ found that if Plaintiff stopped the substance use, he would have 3 the following severe impairments: depressive disorder and anxiety disorder. Tr.

4 28. The ALJ further found that if Plaintiff stopped the substance use, he would not 5 have an impairment or combination of impairments that meets or medically equals
6 any of the listed impairments. Id. The ALJ then concluded that if Plaintiff stopped 7 the substance use, Plaintiff would have the RFC to perform a full range of work at 8 all exertional levels, but with the following nonexertional limitations:

9 [Plaintiff] is able to understand, remember, and carry out simple, routine, 10 and repetitive tasks and instructions and is able to maintain attention and 11 concentration for 2-hour intervals between regularly scheduled breaks. He 12 would require a very predictable environment with no more than seldom 13 changes in the work setting/work routine. He is capable of only brief and 14 superficial (defined as non-collaborative) contact with the public, dealing 15 with things rather than people. Neither math nor reading should be an 16 essential function of the job.

17 Tr. 29.

18 At step four, the ALJ found that if Plaintiff stopped the substance use, 19 Plaintiff would be able to perform past relevant work as a laborer, shoes. Tr. 33.
20 The ALJ concluded that because substance use disorder is a contributing factor material to the determination of disability, Plaintiff was not under a disability, as defined in the Social Security Act, from December 31, 2008, the amended alleged onset date, through August 1, 2016, the date of the ALJ's decision. Tr. 34.

1 On October 25, 2017, the Appeals Council denied review of the ALJ's 2 decision, Tr. 1-6, making the ALJ's decision the Commissioner's final decision for 3 purposes of judicial review. See 42 U.S.C. § 1383(c)(3); 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.981, 4 422.210.

5 ISSUES

6 Plaintiff seeks judicial review of the Commissioner's final decision denying 7 him disability income benefits under Title II and supplemental security income 8 benefits under Title XVI of the Social Security Act. Plaintiff raises the following 9 issues for review:

- 10 1. Whether the ALJ properly weighed Plaintiff's symptom testimony;
- 11 2. Whether the ALJ properly weighed the medical opinion evidence;
- 12 3. Whether the ALJ properly evaluated the severe impairments at step two;
- 13 4. Whether the ALJ properly evaluated the listings at step three; and
- 14 5. Whether the ALJ conducted a proper step four and five analysis.

16 DISCUSSION

17 A. Plaintiff's Symptom Complaints

18 Plaintiff faults the ALJ for failing to rely on reasons that were clear and 19 convincing in discrediting his subjective symptom claims. ECF No. 15 at 16-19.
20 An ALJ engages in a two-step analysis to determine whether to discount a

1 claimant's testimony regarding subjective symptoms. SSR 16-3p, 2016 WL 2 1119029, at *2. "First, the ALJ must determine whether there is objective medical 3 evidence of an underlying impairment which could reasonably be expected to 4 produce the pain or other symptoms alleged." Molina, 674 F.3d at 1112 (quotation 5 marks omitted). "The claimant is not required to show that [his] impairment could 6 reasonably be expected to cause the severity of the symptom [he] has alleged; [he] 7 need only show that it could reasonably have caused some degree of the 8 symptom." Vasquez v. Astrue, 572 F.3d 586, 591 (9th Cir. 2009).

9 Second, "[i]f the claimant meets the first test and there is no evidence of 10 malingering, the ALJ can only reject the claimant's testimony about the severity of 11 the symptoms if [the ALJ] gives 'specific, clear and convincing reasons' for the 12 rejection." Ghanim v. Colvin, 763 F.3d 1154, 1163 (9th Cir. 2014) (citations 13 omitted). General findings are insufficient; rather, the ALJ must identify what 14 symptom claims are being discounted and what evidence undermines these claims.
15 Id. (quoting Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 834 (9th Cir. 1995)); Thomas v.
16 Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 958 (9th Cir. 2002) (requiring the ALJ to sufficiently 17 explain why it discounted claimant's symptom claims). "The clear and convincing 18 [evidence] standard is the most demanding required in Social Security cases." 19 Garrison v. Colvin, 759 F.3d 995, 1015 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Moore v. Comm'r 20 of Soc. Sec. Admin., 278 F.3d 920, 924 (9th Cir. 2002)).

1 Factors to be considered in evaluating the intensity, persistence, and limiting 2 effects of an individual's symptoms include: 1) daily activities; 2) the location, 3 duration, frequency, and intensity of pain or other symptoms; 3) factors that 4 precipitate and aggravate the symptoms; 4) the type, dosage, effectiveness, and 5 side effects of any medication an individual takes or has taken to alleviate pain or 6 other symptoms; 5) treatment, other than medication, an individual receives or has 7 received for relief of pain or other symptoms; 6) any measures other than treatment 8 an individual uses or has used to relieve pain or other symptoms; and 7) any other 9 factors concerning an individual's functional limitations and restrictions due to 10 pain or other symptoms. SSR 16-3p, 2016 WL 1119029, at *7; 20 C.F.R. §§ 11 404.1529(c)(1)-(3), 416.929(c)(1)-(3) (2011). The ALJ is instructed to "consider 12 all of the evidence in an individual's record," "to determine how symptoms limit 13 ability to perform work-related activities." SSR 16-3p, 2016 WL 1119029, at *2.

14 The ALJ found that Plaintiff's medically determinable impairments could 15 reasonably be expected to cause the alleged symptoms, but that Plaintiff's assertion 16 of total disability was not supported by the weight of the evidence. Tr. 30.

17 1. Inconsistent Statements Regarding Drug and Alcohol Use

18 The ALJ discounted Plaintiff's symptom claims because he made 19 inconsistent statements regarding his drug and alcohol use. Tr. 30. Conflicting 20 and inconsistent statements about substance use are appropriate grounds for the

1 ALJ to discount a claimant's reported symptoms. Thomas, 278 F.3d at 959;
2 Edlund, 253 F.3d at 1157; Gray v. Comm'r, of Soc. Sec., 365 F. App'x 60, 63 (9th 3 Cir. 2010); Lewis v. Astrue, 238 F. App'x 300, 302 (9th Cir. 2007); Morton v.
4 Astrue, 232 F. App'x 718, 719 (9th Cir. 2007). Here, the ALJ cited numerous 5 instances where Plaintiff gave inconsistent information to providers regarding his 6 substance use and at various times denied a history of drug use. Tr. 30; see Tr.
7 283, 286 (May 2007: denied any prior use of drugs, including marijuana); Tr. 285-8 86 (May 2008: reported first use of marijuana at age 17 (approximately 1990) and 9 daily use from approximately 2003 to 2008); Tr. 329 (Jan. 2013: started using 10 methamphetamine at age 18 (approximately 1991) for approximately 12 years; 11 started smoking marijuana at age 12 (approximately 1985), daily use from age 13
12 (approximately 1986) to at least 2010); Tr. 291 (June 2012: reported smoking 13 marijuana weekly); Tr. 341 (Sept. 2014: reported cannabis use – one bowl a day).

14 Specifically, at a July 2015 evaluation, Plaintiff reported he had never used 15 cannabis or illegal drugs, which is inconsistent with his significant prior history of 16 marijuana and methamphetamine use. Tr. 349. At an evaluation on April 29, 17 2014, Plaintiff reported that he had quit drinking three months ago and had not 18 relapsed and reported no history of or current use of illicit drugs. Tr. 337. In fact, 19 a chart note from April 4, 2014 indicates he had started drinking heavily because 20 his wife had left him. Tr. 334-36. As another example, at an evaluation in January

1 2013, Plaintiff told Dr. Garrett that he had stopped smoking marijuana three years
2 prior, which was inconsistent with the fact that he told his counselor in June 2012
3 that he was using marijuana weekly. Compare Tr. 329 with Tr. 291.

4 Plaintiff contends that the inconsistent statements are explained by 5 Plaintiff's poor memory, that Plaintiff was generally forthcoming about his 6 substance abuse, and that Plaintiff corrected his testimony regarding drug and 7 alcohol abuse at the hearing. ECF No. 15 at 17 (citing Tr. 53-54); ECF No. 17 at 8 7. Where the "evidence is susceptible to more than one rational interpretation, the 9 ALJ's decision should be upheld." Ryan v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec., 528 F.3d 1194, 10 1198 (9th Cir. 2008) (internal quotation marks omitted). On this record, the ALJ 11 reasonably concluded that Plaintiff inconsistently reported his substance use. This 12 finding is supported by substantial evidence and was a clear and convincing reason
13 to discount Plaintiff's symptoms complaints.

14 2. Objective Medical Evidence

15 The ALJ found that Plaintiff's symptom complaints were not supported by 16 the objective medical evidence. Tr. 30. An ALJ may not discredit a claimant's 17 symptom testimony and deny benefits solely because the degree of the symptoms
18 alleged is not supported by objective medical evidence. Burch v. Barnhart, 400 19 F.3d 676, 680 (9th Cir. 2005); Rollins v. Massanari, 261 F.3d 853, 857 (9th Cir.
20 2001); Bunnell v. Sullivan, 947 F.2d 341, 346-47 (9th Cir. 1991); Fair v. Bowen,

1 885 F.2d 597, 601 (9th Cir. 1989). However, the medical evidence is a relevant 2 factor in determining the severity of a claimant's symptoms and their disabling
3 effects. Rollins, 261 F.3d at 857; 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1529(c)(2), 416.929(c)(2)
4 (2011). Here, the ALJ found that the only medical opinions that support Plaintiff's 5 symptom complaints were based on erroneous information he provided to the 6 evaluator regarding his substance abuse. Tr. 30. As one example, the ALJ noted 7 that Dr. Arnold assessed numerous severe limitations, concluded that the 8 limitations were not the result of substance abuse, and opined the limitations would 9 persist even after a period of sobriety. Tr. 349-52. However, as discussed supra, 10 Plaintiff denied any prior illicit drug use or marijuana use to Dr. Arnold, despite 11 his significant history of drug use. Tr. 349. Moreover, where Dr. Arnold's report 12 was rendered in July 2015, Plaintiff reported drinking heavily as recently as April 13 2014, Tr. 334-36, and as of at least September 2014 reported using a bowl of 14 cannabis daily, Tr. 341.

15 Plaintiff contends that the ALJ overlooked and mischaracterized
16 considerable evidence demonstrating Plaintiff had disabling impairments, 17 particularly in cognition, depressive symptoms and social interaction, in the 18 absence of substance use. ECF No. 15 at 17-18. However, Plaintiff fails to 19 identify any evidence where a provider or evaluator, who was fully apprised of 20 Plaintiff's history of substance abuse and current use of substances, opined that

1 Plaintiff would have disabling impairments absent substance abuse. See Shinseki, 2 556 U.S. at 409-10 (the party challenging the ALJ's decision bears the burden of 3 showing harm). The ALJ reasonably considered the medical evidence and 4 concluded it did not support the severity of Plaintiff's symptom complaints. This 5 finding is supported by substantial evidence and was a clear and convincing reason
6 to discount Plaintiff's symptoms complaints.

7 3. Minimal Treatment

8 The ALJ found Plaintiff's symptom allegations were inconsistent with the 9 minimal treatment he sought. Tr. 30. An unexplained, or inadequately explained, 10 failure to seek treatment or follow a prescribed course of treatment may be 11 considered when evaluating the claimant's subjective symptoms. Orn v. Astrue, 12 495 F.3d 625, 638 (9th Cir. 2007). Evidence of a claimant's self-limitation and 13 lack of motivation to seek treatment are appropriate considerations in determining 14 the credibility of a claimant's subjective symptom reports. Osenbrock v. Apfel, 15 240 F.3d 1157, 1165-66 (9th Cir. 2001); Bell-Shier v. Astrue, 312 F. App'x 45, 49 16 (9th Cir. 2009) (considering why plaintiff was not seeking treatment). Here, the 17 ALJ noted that the relative infrequency of the treatment sought by Plaintiff was not 18 consistent with his allegations of chronic and debilitating mental symptoms, 19 particularly in view of his ready access to medical care through public health 20 insurance. Tr. 30. The ALJ noted that although Plaintiff alleges disability

1 beginning December 31, 2008, there were no medical treatment records between 2 April 18, 2008 and September 2009, no treatment records between April 2010 and 3 January 2012, and no treatment records after December 2012 other than three 4 months of treatment in April to August 2014 and two visits for low-back pain in 5 March and April 2015. Tr. 30. Specifically, between 2013 and 2015, there are 6 only five records: three medication management appointments, Tr. 341, 344, 346, 7 and two visits for low back pain, Tr. 367, 369.

8 Plaintiff contends that he was unable to obtain psychiatric treatment due to 9 insurance and financial issues. ECF No. 15 at 18 (citing Tr. 51, 323, 349, 372).
10 Disability benefits may not be denied because of the claimant's failure to obtain 11 treatment he cannot obtain for lack of funds. Gamble v. Chater, 68 F.3d 319, 321 12 (9th Cir. 1995). Here, there is evidence in the record that Plaintiff was unable to 13 see a psychiatrist and his medications had to be addressed by his primary care 14 physician due to his insurance limitations. See, e.g., Tr. 323. There is no evidence 15 in the record that he faced any similar limitations in seeking other medical care, 16 such as seeing his primary care physician or in seeking counseling services. The 17 treatment records show recommendations to pursue counseling. Tr. 304, 310, 335.
18 Additionally, treatment records also show that providers directed Plaintiff to 19 contact his insurance to find out which psychiatrists and physical therapists were 20 under contract with his insurance provider, see, e.g., Tr. 335, 367, and there is no

1 indication in the record that he complied. These treatment records indicate 2 Plaintiff did have some access to treatment, but did not pursue it consistently. The 3 ALJ reasonably determined that the minimal treatment Plaintiff sought during the 4 eight-year relevant period was inconsistent with claims of a disabling 5 psychological condition. This finding is supported by substantial evidence and 6 was a clear and convincing reason to discount Plaintiff's symptoms complaints.

7 4. Stopped Work for Reasons Unrelated to Impairments

8 The ALJ noted that Plaintiff discontinued working for reasons that were 9 unrelated to his impairments, which undermined his claims of disabling conditions.
10 Tr. 31. When considering a claimant's contention that he cannot work because of 11 his impairments, it is appropriate to consider whether the claimant has not worked 12 for reasons unrelated to his alleged disability. See Tommasetti v. Astrue, 533 F.3d 13 1035, 1040 (9th Cir. 2008); Bruton v. Massanari, 268 F.3d 824, 828 (9th Cir.
14 2001) (sufficient reasons for disregarding subjective testimony include stopping 15 work for nonmedical reasons and failure to seek care for allegedly disabling 16 condition at the time claimant stopped work). Here, the ALJ found that Plaintiff 17 stopped working to stay home and care for his children, which was unrelated to his 18 impairments. Tr. 31 (citing Tr. 56-57, 285, 310, 328). The ALJ reasonably 19 considered this evidence, which provided a clear and convincing reason to discount 20 Plaintiff's symptom claims. Furthermore, Plaintiff did not challenge this finding.

ECF No. 15 at 16-19; see Carmickle v. Comm’r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 533 F.3d 1155, 1161 n.2 (9th Cir. 2008) (determining Court may decline to address on the merits issues not argued with specificity).

5. Daily Activities

The ALJ found that Plaintiff’s daily activities were not consistent with his allegations of disabling impairments. Tr. 31. The ALJ may consider a claimant’s activities that undermine reported symptoms. Rollins, 261 F.3d at 857. If a claimant can spend a substantial part of the day engaged in pursuits involving the performance of exertional or non-exertional functions, the ALJ may find these activities inconsistent with the reported disabling symptoms. Fair, 885 F.2d at 603; Molina, 674 F.3d at 1113. “While a claimant need not vegetate in a dark room in order to be eligible for benefits, the ALJ may discount a claimant’s symptom claims when the claimant reports participation in everyday activities indicating capacities that are transferable to a work setting” or when activities “contradict claims of a totally debilitating impairment.” Molina, 674 F.3d at 1112-13.

At the hearing, Plaintiff testified that he needed help from his nephew for daily activities such as remembering appointments and taking medications. Tr. 50-52. The ALJ found this inconsistent with the fact that Plaintiff was a stay at home father taking care of his children and stepchildren and their family home for

1 several years. Tr. 31 (citing e.g., Tr. 287, 361). The ALJ noted that Plaintiff was 2 independent in his personal care and was able to handle house tasks, such as 3 laundry, vacuuming, doing dishes, and grocery shopping. Tr. 31 (citing e.g., Tr.
4 329, 338). To the extent the ALJ erred in assessing daily activities, any such error
5 would be harmless because the ALJ provided several other legally sufficient 6 reasons, discussed supra, to discount Plaintiff's symptom claims. See Carmickle, 7 533 F.3d at 1163 (upholding an adverse credibility finding where the ALJ provided 8 four reasons to discredit the claimant, two of which were invalid); Batson v.
9 Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 359 F.3d 1190, 1197 (9th Cir. 2004) (affirming a 10 credibility finding where one of several reasons was unsupported by the record); 11 Tommasetti, 533 F.3d at 1038 (an error is harmless when "it is clear from the 12 record that the . . . error was inconsequential to the ultimate nondisability 13 determination"). Plaintiff is not entitled to remand on these grounds.

14 B. Medical Opinion Evidence

15 Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's consideration of the medical opinions of 16 treating physician Charles Haigh, M.D., treating nurse Susan Bruner, examining 17 psychologist John Arnold, Ph.D., examining psychologist Jeanette Higgins, Psy.D., 18 and examining psychiatrist Justin Garrett, D.O. ECF No. 15 at 8-14.

19 There are three types of physicians: "(1) those who treat the claimant 20 (treating physicians); (2) those who examine but do not treat the claimant

(examining physicians); and (3) those who neither examine nor treat the claimant [but who review the claimant's file] (nonexamining [or reviewing] physicians)." Holohan v. Massanari, 246 F.3d 1195, 1201-02 (9th Cir. 2001) (citations omitted). Generally, a treating physician's opinion carries more weight than an examining physician's, and an examining physician's opinion carries more weight than a reviewing physician's. Id. at 1202. "In addition, the regulations give more weight to opinions that are explained than to those that are not, and to the opinions of specialists concerning matters relating to their specialty over that of nonspecialists." Id. (citations omitted).

If a treating or examining physician's opinion is uncontradicted, the ALJ may reject it only by offering "clear and convincing reasons that are supported by substantial evidence." Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1216 (9th Cir. 2005). "However, the ALJ need not accept the opinion of any physician, including a treating physician, if that opinion is brief, conclusory and inadequately supported by clinical findings." Bray v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 554 F.3d 1219, 1228 (9th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks and brackets omitted). "If a treating or examining doctor's opinion is contradicted by another doctor's opinion, an ALJ may only reject it by providing specific and legitimate reasons that are supported by substantial evidence." Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216 (citing Lester, 81 F.3d at 830-831).

1 The opinion of an acceptable medical source such as a physician or 2 psychologist is given more weight than that of an “other source.” 20 C.F.R. §§
3 404.1527, 416.927 (2012); Gomez v. Chater, 74 F.3d 967, 970-71 (9th Cir. 1996).
4 “Other sources” include nurse practitioners, physicians’ assistants, therapists,
5 teachers, social workers, spouses and other non-medical sources. 20 C.F.R. §§ 6 404.1513(d), 416.923(d) (2013). However, the ALJ is required to “consider 7 observations by non-medical sources as to how an impairment affects a claimant’s 8 ability to work.” Sprague v. Bowen, 812 F.2d 1226, 1232 (9th Cir. 1987). Non-9 medical testimony can never establish a diagnosis or disability absent 10 corroborating competent medical evidence. Nguyen v. Chater, 100 F.3d 1462, 11 1467 (9th Cir. 1996). An ALJ is obligated to give reasons germane to “other 12 source” testimony before discounting it. Dodrill v. Shalala, 12 F.3d 915, 918 (9th 13 Cir. 1993).

14 1. Dr. Haigh

15 On March 27, 2015, Dr. Haigh issued a letter stating Plaintiff “is under my 16 care and is to do walking as tolerated, lifting as tolerated, and limitations as per 17 physical therapy.” Tr. 363. On May 4, 2015, he prepared a WorkFirst Form in 18 which he opined that due to back pain, Plaintiff was limited to working 11-20 19 hours per work and that Plaintiff was limited to light work. Tr. 364-66. The ALJ
20 gave these opinions limited weight. Tr. 32-33. Here, no other provider examined

1 Plaintiff after his back complaints arose in the spring of 2015. Because no other 2 provider evaluated Plaintiff after these complaints arose, and thus no other 3 provider rendered an opinion reflective of these complaints, the Court assumes 4 without deciding that the ALJ was required to provide clear and convincing 5 reasons to discredit Dr. Haigh's opinion. Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216.

6 First, the ALJ noted that the form gave limitations for which there was no
7 explanation. Tr. 32-33. Relevant factors to evaluating any medical opinion 8 include the amount of relevant evidence that supports the opinion, the quality of 9 the explanation provided in the opinion, and the consistency of the medical opinion
10 with the record as a whole. Lingenfelter v. Astrue, 504 F.3d 1028, 1042 (9th Cir.
11 2007); Orn, 495 F.3d at 631. A medical opinion may be rejected by the ALJ if it is 12 conclusory or inadequately supported. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228; Thomas, 278 F.3d
13 at 957. Here, the ALJ accurately noted that the form provides no explanation other 14 than a generalized reference to "low back pain." Tr. 363-65. Dr. Haigh references 15 his chart notes dated March 6 and April 3, 2015. Tr. 364. A review of those notes 16 indicates that on March 6, 2015, Plaintiff visited Dr. Haigh, and complained of low 17 back pain, which had started a month prior after a fall at work. Tr. 368-70. Dr.
18 Haigh's examination showed minimal findings: Plaintiff's gait was within normal 19 limits, he was able to get onto the examination table, had negative straight leg 20 raise, negative FABER bilaterally, deep tendon reflexes were normal, and his

1 lower extremity sensation was normal. Tr. 369. Plaintiff was advised that he 2 needed physical therapy and Dr. Haigh noted that PT “has not really been 3 addressed yet.” Tr. 369. Plaintiff was prescribed muscle relaxants and anti-4 inflammatory medication, and Dr. Haigh found there was no need for narcotics.
5 Tr. 369-70. Plaintiff returned on April 3, 2015, with the same symptoms and 6 complained that he could not find a physical therapist to take his insurance. Tr.
7 367. Dr. Haigh advised Plaintiff that it was his responsibility to contact his 8 insurance company and ask who will take his insurance. Tr. 367. Dr. Haigh did 9 not modify Plaintiff’s medications. Tr. 367. Here, Dr. Haigh’s treatment notes 10 reveal that Plaintiff’s examinations findings were minimal and no tests were 11 conducted. The ALJ reasonably concluded that the basis for Dr. Haigh’s opined 12 limitations was not supported. This was a clear and convincing reason to discredit 13 them.

14 Second, the ALJ found the opinions vague and based on Plaintiff’s 15 subjective symptom complaints. Tr. 33. A physician’s opinion may be rejected if 16 it based on a claimant’s subjective complaints which were properly discounted.
17 Tonapetyan v. Halter, 242 F.3d 1144, 1149 (9th Cir. 2001); Morgan v. Comm’r of 18 Soc. Sec Admin., 169 F.3d 595, 602 (9th Cir. 1999); Fair, 885 F.2d at 604.
19 “[W]hen an opinion is not more heavily based on a patient’s self-reports than on 20 clinical observations, [this] is no evidentiary basis for rejecting the opinion.”

1 Ghanim, 763 F.3d at 1162. As discussed supra, the ALJ reasonably discredited
2 Plaintiff's symptom complaints. Moreover, there were no tests were conducted.
3 Any examination findings were minimal. In the absence of supportive objective 4 findings, the ALJ reasonably concluded that Dr. Haigh's opinions were based on 5 Plaintiff's self-reports. This was a clear and convincing reason to reject the 6 limitations.

7 Third, the ALJ found Dr. Haigh's opinions were insufficiently explained.
8 The Social Security regulations "give more weight to opinions that are explained 9 than to those that are not." Holohan, 246 F.3d at 1202. The ALJ noted that the 10 March 27, 2015 indicated the limitations were "as per physical therapy", Tr. 363, 11 and the WorkFirst form indicated that Plaintiff should be evaluated by PT, Tr. 365-12 66, but there are no records indicating that Plaintiff attended physical therapy.
13 Additionally, Dr. Haigh noted the impairment was not expected to be permanent, 14 but he failed to indicate how many months it was expected to last. Tr. 365. The 15 lack of explanation for Dr. Haigh's opinion was a clear and convincing reason to 16 discredit Dr. Haigh's assessed limitations.

17 Finally, this period does not meet the durational time frame required for a 18 finding of disability. Tr. 25; see 42 § U.S.C. 423(d)(1)(A) (in order to be found 19 disabled, Plaintiff's impairments must have lasted or be expected to last for a 20 continuous period of not less than 12 months). Here, Plaintiff's complaint of low

1 back pain is mentioned in two chart notes, in March and April 2015. The opinions 2 were issued in March and May 2015. In fact, Dr. Haigh noted the impairment was 3 not expected to be permanent and he failed to indicate how many months it was 4 expected to last. Tr. 365.

5 The ALJ did not err in rejecting Dr. Haigh's opinion.

6 2. Ms. Bruner

7 In November 2014, Ms. Bruner completed an evaluation and opined that 8 Plaintiff was unable to follow complex instructions or concentrate for extended 9 periods but that he would be able to work at a farm job, such as picking weeds for 10 example. Tr. 360. She further opined that he would need work requiring no or 11 minimal social skills and no decision making, preferably a job with full benefits to 12 incentivize him to work rather than apply for disability. Tr. 361. She opined that 13 he would be limited to working 11-20 hours per week and to light work. Tr. 360-
14 61. The ALJ gave Ms. Bruner's opinion limited weight. Tr. 32. As an other 15 source, the ALJ was required to identify germane reasons for rejecting the opinion.
16 Dodrill, 12 F.3d at 918.

17 The ALJ noted that Ms. Bruner's opinion was internally inconsistent. Tr.
18 32-33. An ALJ may reject opinions that are internally inconsistent. Nguyen, 100 19 F.3d at 1464. An ALJ is not obliged to credit medical opinions that are 20 unsupported by the medical source's own data and/or contradicted by the opinions

1 of other examining medical sources. Tommasetti, 533 F.3d at 1041. Although Ms.
2 Bruner noted that Plaintiff did not have physical impairments, Tr. 360, and did not 3 have any limitations on lifting and carrying, Tr. 361, she then imposed physical 4 limitations of restrictions to light work. Tr. 361. Moreover, the Court notes that 5 Ms. Bruner indicated that Plaintiff could do farm work or picking weeds, which 6 would be inconsistent with the standing/walking limitations of light work. Finally, 7 Ms. Bruner indicated Plaintiff could work only 11-20 hours, but then indicated that 8 Plaintiff should seek a job with “full benefits to [increase] the incentive to work 9 rather than apply for disability.” Tr. 361. It is inconsistent to indicate Plaintiff can 10 only work 11-20 hours a week and also suggest he seek a job with full benefits.
11 These numerous internal inconsistencies were a germane reason to discount her 12 opinions.

13       The ALJ also discounted Ms. Bruner’s opinions because they were not 14 supported. Tr. 32-33. A medical opinion may be rejected by the ALJ if it is 15 conclusory or inadequately supported. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228; Thomas, 278 F.3d
16 at 957. Here, the ALJ noted that Ms. Bruner failed to provide any reason why 17 Plaintiff would be limited to working a certain number of hours or limited to light 18 work. Tr. 32-33. The ALJ further observed that Ms. Bruner was providing mental 19 health treatment to Plaintiff, so she was less qualified to give opinions as to his 20 physical limitations. Tr. 33; see, e.g., Williams v. Colvin, No. 2:14-cv-00213-FVS,

1 2015 WL 5039911, at *8 (E.D. Wash. Aug. 26, 2015) (citing Brosnahan v.
2 Barnhart, 336 F.3d 671, 676 (8th Cir. 2003)) (finding physical limitations were 3 beyond the expertise of psychologist). In light of Ms. Bruner's lack of expertise on 4 Plaintiff's physical functioning and the lack of explanation for her opinion, the 5 ALJ reasonably concluded that Ms. Bruner's opinions were not supported. This 6 was a germane reason to discount her opinions.

7 3. Dr. Arnold

8 In July 2015, Dr. Arnold performed a psychological/psychiatric evaluation 9 and diagnosed Plaintiff with Unspecified Bipolar Disorder, currently depressed, 10 generalized anxiety disorder, and alcohol use disorder (moderate-severe). Tr. 349-11 53. Dr. Arnold assessed seven moderate limitations; marked limitations in the 12 abilities to understand, remember, and persist in tasks by following detailed 13 instructions, perform activities within a schedule, maintain regular attendance, and 14 be punctual within customary tolerances without special supervision, adapt to 15 changes in a routine work setting, be aware of normal hazards and take appropriate 16 precautions, and maintain appropriate behavior in a work setting; and a severe 17 limitation in the ability to complete a normal work day and work week without 18 interruptions from psychologically based symptoms. Tr. 351. Dr. Arnold further 19 opined that the current impairments were not the result of alcohol or drug use 20 within the last 60 days and would persist following 60 days of sobriety. Tr. 352.

1 The ALJ gave the opinion no weight. Tr. 32. Because Dr. Arnold's opinion was 2 contradicted by Dr. Veraldi, Tr.44-50, Dr. Higgins, Tr. 337-39, and Dr. Garrett, Tr.
3 327-32, the ALJ was required to provide specific and legitimate reasons to reject
4 Dr. Arnold's opinion. Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216.

5 First, the ALJ discredited Dr. Arnold's opinion because it was based on a 6 cursory evaluation. Tr. 32. Relevant factors to evaluating any medical opinion 7 include the amount of relevant evidence that supports the opinion, the quality of 8 the explanation provided in the opinion, and the consistency of the medical opinion
9 with the record as a whole. Lingenfelter, 504 F.3d at 1042; Orn, 495 at 631. A 10 medical opinion may be rejected by the ALJ if it is conclusory or inadequately 11 supported. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228; Thomas, 278 F.3d at 957. Also, individual 12 medical opinions are preferred over check-box reports. See Crane v. Shalala, 76 13 F.3d 251, 253 (9th Cir. 1996); Murray v. Heckler, 722 F.2d 499, 501 (9th Cir.
14 1983). An ALJ may permissibly reject check-box reports that do not contain any 15 explanation of the bases for their conclusions. Crane, 76 F.3d at 253. However, if 16 treatment notes are consistent with the opinion, a check-box form may not 17 automatically be rejected. See Garrison, 759 F.3d at 1014 n.17; see also Trevizo v.
18 Berryhill, 871 F.3d 664, 667 n.4 (9th Cir. 2017) (“[T]here is no authority that a 19 ‘check-the-box’ form is any less reliable than any other type of form”). Here, the 20 ALJ noted that Dr. Arnold performed a cursory evaluation, obtained a limited

1 history, and used a check box form containing minimal if any basis to support the 2 extreme limitations. Tr. 32. Dr. Arnold conducted a clinical interview, mental 3 status examination, performed limited testing, and performed no record review.
4 Tr. 349-50. The ALJ reasonably concluded that Dr. Arnold's report did not 5 sufficiently explain the extreme limitations he opined.

6       Instead, the ALJ credited Dr. Veraldi over Dr. Arnold, given her specialized 7 expertise in clinical psychology, her SSA program knowledge, and her opportunity 8 to review the entire longitudinal record and base her opinion on the objective and 9 clinical findings. Tr. 31. Moreover, the ALJ noted that she specifically testified to 10 Plaintiff's substance abuse issues. Tr. 25. It is the ALJ's responsibility to resolve 11 conflicts in the medical evidence. Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th 12 Cir. 1995). Where the ALJ's interpretation of the record is reasonable as it is here, 13 it should not be second-guessed. Rollins, 261 F.3d at 857. The Court must 14 consider the ALJ's decision in the context of "the entire record as a whole," and if 15 the "evidence is susceptible to more than one rational interpretation, the ALJ's 16 decision should be upheld." Ryan, 528 F.3d at 1198 (internal quotation marks 17 omitted). Here, the ALJ reasonably concluded, based on this record, that Dr.
18 Arnold's opinion lacked thoroughness and was insufficiently explained.

19       Second, the ALJ discounted Dr. Arnold's opinion, concluding that it was 20 based on inaccurate information related to Plaintiff's substance abuse. Tr. 32. An

1 ALJ may properly reject a medical opinion that is rendered without knowledge of a
2 claimant's substance abuse. See Coffman v. Astrue, 469 F. App'x 609, 611 (9th
3 Cir. 2012); Serpa v. Colvin, No. 11-cv-121-RHW, 2013 WL 4480016, at *8 (E.D.
4 Wash., Aug. 19, 2013). Here, the ALJ noted that Plaintiff failed to disclose 5 marijuana or other illegal drug use to Dr. Arnold. Tr. 32 (referring to Tr. 349:
6 "Cannabis: last use: never" and "Illegal Drugs: Never"). In fact, as the ALJ noted, 7 Plaintiff has a substantial history of substance use. See, e.g., Tr. 341 (Sept. 2014: 8 "cannabis use – 1 bowl a day"); Tr. 329 (Jan. 2013: reported he started using 9 marijuana at age 12 and was smoking daily from age 13 to approximately 2010, 10 and reported using methamphetamine from age 18 for approximately 12 years, 7 to 11 10 days a month); Tr. 285 (May 2008: reported that he began using marijuana at 12 age 17 and used it daily from at least 2003 to interview in 2008). A claimant's 13 history of and current substance use is particularly relevant in a matter such as this 14 where the ALJ is required to assess a claimant's functioning with and without 15 substance abuse. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1535(b), 416.935(b). This was a specific and 16 legitimate reason to reject Dr. Arnold's opinions.

17 Third, the ALJ found that Dr. Arnold's limitations were based on Plaintiff's 18 inaccurate self reports. Tr. 32. A physician's opinion may be rejected if it based 19 on a claimant's subjective complaints which were properly discounted.
20 Tonapetyan, 242 F.3d at 1149; Morgan, 169 F.3d at 602; Fair, 885 F.2d at 604.

1 “[W]hen an opinion is not more heavily based on a patient’s self-reports than on 2 clinical observations, [this] is no evidentiary basis for rejecting the opinion.”
3 Ghanim, 763 F.3d at 1162. As discussed supra, the ALJ reasonably discredited
4 Plaintiff’s symptom complaints. Moreover, here, the ALJ identified specific 5 inconsistent information Plaintiff relayed to Dr. Arnold in the course of the 6 evaluation. Tr. 32. For example, the ALJ noted that Plaintiff told Dr. Arnold he 7 had been in treatment at Frontier Behavioral Health the year prior, Tr. 349, which 8 was inconsistent with his hearing testimony that he did not receive counseling, Tr.
9 60-61, and was otherwise not supported by the record. The ALJ noted that 10 Plaintiff told Dr. Arnold that he had never used cannabis, Tr. 349, but the record is 11 replete with references to marijuana use, including use of one bowl a day as of 12 September 2014, Tr. 341. Given the limited evaluation, limited testing, and no
13 record review, the ALJ reasonably concluded that Dr. Arnold relied on Plaintiff’s 14 discredited symptom complaints in assessing limitations. This was a specific and 15 legitimate reason for discounting Dr. Arnold’s opinions.

16 Fourth, the ALJ discredited Dr. Arnold’s opinion because the severity of the 17 assessed limitations was inconsistent with many of his normal examination 18 findings. Tr. 32. A medical opinion may be rejected if it is unsupported by 19 medical findings and treatment notes. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228; Batson, 359 F.3d at 20 1195; Thomas, 278 F.3d at 957; Tommasetti, 533 F.3d at 1041; Matney v. Sullivan,

1 981 F.2d 1016, 1019 (9th Cir. 1992). Here, Plaintiff's Rey test was normal, Trails
2 A were within normal limits, and Trails B test showed impairment. Tr. 350.
3 Plaintiff's appearance, speech, and attitude were generally normal, his mood was 4 depressed and anxious and his affect was mildly blunted, possibly due to his 5 medications. Tr. 352. His thought process and content, orientation, perception, 6 and insight and judgment were within normal limits. Tr. 353. His memory, fund 7 of knowledge, concentration, and abstract thought were not within normal limits.
8 Tr. 353. The Court must consider the ALJ's decision in the context of "the entire 9 record as a whole," and if the "evidence is susceptible to more than one rational 10 interpretation, the ALJ's decision should be upheld." Ryan, 528 F.3d at 1198
11 (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, the ALJ reasonably concluded that Dr.
12 Arnold's findings did not support the level of impairment he opined. Tr. 32.
13 Moreover, even if the ALJ erred by discounting Dr. Arnold's opinion on this 14 ground, any error would be harmless because, as discussed supra, the ALJ 15 provided several specific and legitimate reasons supported by substantial evidence 16 for rejecting his opinions. See Molina, 674 F.3d at 1115.

17 4. Dr. Higgins and Dr. Garrett

18 In April 2014, Dr. Higgins performed a consultative examination, diagnosed 19 Plaintiff with mood disorder NOS and alcohol dependence in early full remission 20 by self-report. Tr. 337-39. Dr. Higgins opined that Plaintiff has the ability to 1 understand, remember, and carry out simple instructions and to make simple work-2 related decisions based on behavioral observations and MSE performance; he 3 likely has the ability to understand, remember, and carry out complex instructions 4 and to make judgments on complex work-related decisions under low pressure 5 situations given additional time and support; however, he cannot be expected to 6 perform these tasks under any conditions while severely depressed and/or actively 7 using alcohol. Tr. 339. She further opined that Plaintiff has the ability to interact 8 appropriately with the public given his presentation; however, he does appear to 9 become quite anxious when under perceived pressure. He is likely to tolerate brief, 10 casual, low-pressure, minimal contact with the public. Tr. 339. He has the ability 11 to appropriately interact with a supervisor and coworkers who are patient, tolerant, 12 and supportive. He does not currently have the ability to respond appropriately to 13 the usual work situations and to changes in a routine work setting due to mood 14 dysregulation and decompensation under perceived pressure (i.e., drinking 15 behavior, verbal aggression). Tr. 339. Significantly, she noted that “[a]lcohol use 16 is certainly exacerbating depression and prognosis is poor for this reason. If he 17 were to abstain from alcohol for a minimum of six months without relapse and 18 access outpatient therapy to address depression, prognosis would improve 19 significantly.” Tr. 339.

1 In January of 2013, Dr. Garrett evaluated Plaintiff and diagnosed him with 2 bipolar disorder type II, current episode depressed, generalized anxiety disorder, 3 alcohol dependence ongoing, and methamphetamine dependence in full-sustained 4 remission. Tr. 327-31. Dr. Garrett opined Plaintiff had significant impairments, 5 including being markedly impaired ability to perform simply and repetitive tasks 6 based on his difficulty with immediate memory, concentration, and serial 7 subtractions, and distractibility; severely impaired ability to perform detailed and 8 complex tasks; and markedly impaired ability to perform work activities on a 9 consistent basis without special or additional instruction based on his difficulty 10 with immediate memory, concentration and distractibility. Tr. 331. Dr. Garrett 11 stated “his heavy alcohol use is a confounding factor, and it is possible that his 12 mood and anxiety symptoms are substance induced.” Tr. 331.

13 Plaintiff contends that the ALJ discussed these opinions, but did not 14 expressly reject any part of them. ECF No. 15 at 13-14 (citing Tr. 27). First, the 15 ALJ considered the opinions in the context of the substance use analysis as 16 required by the social security regulations. Tr. 24-27; 20 C.F.R. §§
17 404.1535(b)(2), 416.935(b)(2); SSR 13-2p. Here, the ALJ evaluated Plaintiff’s 18 disability considering his drug and alcohol use. Relying in part on the opinions of 19 Dr. Veraldi, Dr. Higgins, and Dr. Garrett, all of whom noted limitations related to 20 Plaintiff’s substance abuse, the ALJ concluded Plaintiff would be disabled

1 considering his substance abuse. Tr. 27. Although an ALJ must provide specific 2 and legitimate reasons to reject contradicted medical opinion evidence, the same 3 standard does not apply when the ALJ credits opinion evidence. See Orteza v.
4 Shalala, 50 F.3d 748, 750 (9th Cir. 1995); Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216. It is apparent
5 from the context of the ALJ's finding that the ALJ was giving credit to both Dr.
6 Higgins' and Dr. Garretts' opinions. Next, the ALJ then re-evaluated Plaintiff's 7 disability, considering Plaintiff's impairments once the effects of drug and alcohol 8 abuse had been eliminated. Tr. 28. At that point, the ALJ did not consider Dr.
9 Higgins' and Dr. Garrett's opinions as they were given at a time when Plaintiff was 10 heavily abusing alcohol and neither opined limitations that would exist absent drug 11 and alcohol abuse.

12 Here, both Dr. Higgins and Dr. Garrett found that Plaintiff's conditions were 13 significantly impacted by his alcohol abuse. Tr. 339, 331. Plaintiff has not 14 identified any limitation that Dr. Higgins or Dr. Garrett opined would exist absent 15 Plaintiff's substance abuse. As a result, the ALJ was not required to incorporate 16 any opined limitation from Dr. Higgins' or Dr. Garrett's opinions into the RFC.
17 Plaintiff has not identified any error in the evaluation of Dr. Higgins' and Dr.
18 Garrett's opinions.

1       C. Step Two

2           Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred at step two by failing to identify the 3 following impairments as severe at step two: bipolar/mood disorder, diabetes, 4 muscle spasms, ADHD, borderline intellectual functioning/cognitive 5 impairment/learning disability, with limited ability to read, write/spell, and do 6 math, GERD, insomnia, and low back pain. ECF No. 15 at 15-16.

7           At step two of the sequential process, the ALJ must determine whether 8 claimant suffers from a “severe” impairment, i.e., one that significantly limits his 9 physical or mental ability to do basic work activities. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(c), 10 416.920(c). To show a severe impairment, the claimant must first prove the 11 existence of a physical or mental impairment by providing medical evidence 12 consisting of signs, symptoms, and laboratory findings; the claimant’s own 13 statement of symptoms alone will not suffice. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1508, 416.908 14 (1991).<sup>1</sup> An impairment is medically determinable if it is diagnosed by an 15 acceptable medical source and based upon acceptable medical evidence. SSR 96– 16 4p, available at 1996 WL 374187; 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1513(a), 416.913(a) (2013).

17
18       <sup>1</sup> As of March 27, 2017, relevant regulations including 20 C.F.R. § 416.908 was 19 removed and reserved, and 20 C.F.R. §§ 416.921, 416.922 were revised. The 20 Court applies the version that was in effect at the time of the ALJ’s decision.

1 An impairment may be found to be not severe when “medical evidence 2 establishes only a slight abnormality or a combination of slight abnormalities 3 which would have no more than a minimal effect on an individual’s ability to 4 work.” SSR 85-28 at *3. Similarly, an impairment is not severe if it does not 5 significantly limit a claimant’s physical or mental ability to do basic work 6 activities, such as walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, 7 carrying, handling, seeing, hearing, speaking, understanding, carrying out and 8 remembering simple instructions, dealing with changes in a routine work setting, 9 and responding appropriately to supervision, coworkers, and usual work situations.
10 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1521(a), 416.921(a) (1985);<sup>2</sup> SSR 85-28.

11 Step two is “a de minimus screening device [used] to dispose of groundless 12 claims.” Smolen v. Chater, 80 F.3d 1273, 1290 (9th Cir. 1996). “Thus, applying 13 our normal standard of review to the requirements of step two, [the Court] must 14 determine whether the ALJ had substantial evidence to find that the medical 15 evidence clearly established that [Plaintiff] did not have a medically severe 16 impairment or combination of impairments.” Webb v. Barnhart, 433 F.3d 683, 687 17 (9th Cir. 2005).

18 19 <sup>2</sup> As of March 27, 2017, this regulation was amended. The Court applies the 20 version in effect at the time of the ALJ’s decision.

1 At step two, the ALJ considered the record concerning the challenged 2 impairments, but concluded these conditions were non-severe as they did not more 3 than minimally impact Plaintiff's ability to perform basic work activities or were 4 not medically determinable. Tr. 26.

5 1. Bipolar/Mood Disorder

6 The ALJ concluded that the record did not support that bipolar disorder was 7 a medically determinable impairment. Tr. 26. Specifically, relying on the 8 testimony of the medical expert Dr. Veraldi, Tr. 45-47, the ALJ concluded that the 9 DSM-IV and V<sup>3</sup> criteria for diagnosing bipolar disorder were not present in the 10 record. Id. First, the ALJ noted that bipolar disorder was mentioned in the record 11 several times, but concluded that in most instances the evaluator was adopting 12 Plaintiff's recitation that he suffers from the disorder. Id. (citing Tr. 270, 327, 343, 13 350). Second, the ALJ stated that the DSM-IV and V require documentation of 14 episodes of mania in order to make such a diagnosis. Tr. 26. The ALJ noted that 15 the only possible mention of hypomania in the record occurred in 2012 at a time 16 when Plaintiff admitted to drinking up to 24 beers a day. Tr. 26 (citing Tr. 328).
17 The ALJ then further noted that the DSM-IV and V indicate that substance abuse

18
19 <sup>3</sup> Am. Psychiatric Ass'n, Diagnostic & Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (5th 20 ed. 2013).

1 can confound the diagnosis of bipolar disorder and that the diagnosis must be made 2 in the absence of substance abuse. Tr. 26. The ALJ concluded, again relying on 3 Dr. Veraldi's testimony, that Plaintiff's mental health impairments were more 4 accurately characterized by a depression diagnosis, which the ALJ found to be a 5 severe impairment at step two. Tr. 26-28 (referring to Tr. 45-47). Plaintiff fails to 6 address any of the ALJ's specific findings, instead citing to records indicating 7 Plaintiff's diagnosis of bipolar disorder. ECF No. 15 at 15-16; ECF No. 17 at 5.
8 Here, Plaintiff has not established that the ALJ erred in concluding that Plaintiff's 9 mental health impairments were more appropriately characterized as depressive 10 disorder rather than bipolar disorder.

11 Moreover, as Plaintiff was found to have a mental health severe impairment, 12 this claim was not resolved at step two. If there was any error in the ALJ's finding 13 at step two, it is harmless as all impairments, both severe and non-severe, were 14 considered in the determination of Plaintiff's residual functional capacity. Lewis v.
15 Astrue, 498 F.3d 909, 911 (9th Cir. 2007); see also Stout v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec.
16 Admin., 454 F.3d 1050, 1055 (9th Cir. 2006) (error at step two is harmless where 17 the step is resolved in claimant's favor). Plaintiff makes no showing that bipolar 18 disorder creates credited limitations not already accounted for in the RFC. See 19 Shinseki, 556 U.S. at 409-10 (the party challenging the ALJ's decision bears the 20 burden of showing harm).

1           2. Borderline Intellectual Functioning

2           The ALJ concluded that the record did not support that borderline 3 intellectual functioning was a medically determinable impairment. Tr. 26. The 4 ALJ noted that a rule out for border intellectual functioning was mentioned during 5 an evaluation, Tr. 330, and that Ms. Brunner noted that “IQ testing would likely 6 reveal below average range, estimate 80,” Tr. 360. First, “[a] ‘rule-out’ diagnosis
7 is by no means a diagnosis. In the medical context, a ‘rule-out’ diagnosis means 8 there is evidence for a diagnosis may be met, but more information is needed in 9 order to rule it out.” Carrasco v. Astrue, No. ED CV 10-0043 JCG, 2011 WL 10 499346, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 8, 2011) (emphasis in original) (internal citations 11 omitted). A “rule out” diagnosis, standing alone, is not sufficient to establish the 12 existence of a severe impairment. See, e.g., Crawford v. Colvin, No. C13-1786-
13 JCC, 2014 WL 2216115, at *5 (W.D. Wash. May 29, 2014); Jackson v. Astrue, 14 No. ED CV 09-677-PJW, 2010 WL 1734912, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 28, 2010); 15 Simpson v. Comm’r, Soc. Sec. Admin., No. Civ. 99-1816-JO, 2001 WL 213762, at 16 *8 (D. Or. Feb. 8, 2001). As the ALJ noted no testing has been done to support a 17 low Q. Tr. 26. Moreover, Ms. Brunner is not an acceptable medical source, thus, 18 her notation that his IQ would likely be below average, cannot support a medically 19 determinable impairment. Nguyen, 100 F.3d at 1467 (non-medical testimony can 20 never establish a diagnosis or disability absent corroborating competent medical

1 evidence). As Dr. Veraldi noted, estimating IQs should be avoided and there is no
2 information on which to base such an assessment in the record. Tr. 46. Plaintiff
3 has offered no argument to counter these findings, thus Plaintiff has not 4 demonstrated error.

5 3. ADHD

6 The ALJ concluded that the record did not support that ADHD was a 7 medically determinable impairment. Tr. 26. In support of her finding, the ALJ 8 noted that ADHD was mentioned only in the 2007-2008 treatment records of 9 Nurse Practitioner John Billings, who is not an acceptable medical source, without 10 any evidence of testing to support the diagnosis. Tr. 26 (citing Tr. 275-83).
11 Moreover, Dr. Veraldi, the medical expert testified that the diagnosis was not 12 substantiated in the record. Tr. 45. Plaintiff offers no argument other than a 13 citation to Mr. Billings' notes indicating the diagnosis of ADHD. ECF No. 15 at 14 15.<sup>4</sup> Since an impairment must be diagnosed by an acceptable medical source and 15 must be supported by medical evidence in the record, Plaintiff has not 16 demonstrated that the ALJ erred in concluding that the record did not establish 17 ADHD was a medically determinable impairment. Nguyen, 100 F.3d at 1467.

19 <sup>4</sup> The Court notes that in May 2008 when Plaintiff was asked about ADHD, he 20 indicated he was not aware of ever being diagnosed with ADHD. Tr. 284.

1 Moreover, Plaintiff has further not identified any evidence indicating that ADHD 2 caused any limitations in Plaintiff's basic work abilities.

3 4. Diabetes

4 The ALJ did not address whether diabetes was a medically determinable 5 impairment. Tr. 23-26. At the June 2016 hearing, Plaintiff testified that he was 6 diagnosed with type 2 diabetes the year prior to the hearing. Tr. 53. There was no 7 testimony regarding how it impacted his basic work abilities. Plaintiff failed to 8 identify any medical records nor did the Court locate any records indicating 9 Plaintiff was diagnosed with diabetes by an acceptable medical source or that 10 diabetes had any impact on his basic work abilities. ECF No. 15 at 15. The ALJ 11 did not err in failing to find diabetes to be a medically determinable impairment.

12 5. GERD

13 The ALJ did not address whether GERD was a medically determinable 14 impairment. Tr. 23-26. In support of his contention that Plaintiff's GERD is a 15 severe impairment, Plaintiff cites to a January 2012 treatment record indicating 16 Plaintiff was burping a lot after eating spicy foods. Tr. 309. Dr. Haigh prescribed 17 Prilosec. Tr. 311. Plaintiff points to no evidence in the record that GERD has any 18 impact on his basic work abilities. ECF No. 15 at 15. The ALJ did not err in 19 failing to find GERD to be a medically determinable impairment.

1           6. Low-Back Pain

2           The ALJ did not address whether low-back pain was a medically 3 determinable impairment. Tr. 23-26. As discussed supra, Plaintiff failed to 4 establish that any impairment related to his low-back pain met the durational 5 requirement. Accordingly, Plaintiff has not established any error for failing to find 6 low-back pain a severe impairment.

7           Plaintiff has not established any error in the ALJ's step two findings.
8 Moreover, as discussed above because Plaintiff was found to have severe 9 impairments, this case was not resolved at step two. If there was any error in the 10 ALJ's finding at step two, it is harmless as all impairments, both severe and non-11 severe, were considered in the determination of Plaintiff's residual functional 12 capacity. Lewis, 498 F.3d at 911. Plaintiff has made no showing that any of the 13 conditions mentioned create limitations not already accounted for in the RFC. See 14 Shinseki, 556 U.S. at 409-10 (the party challenging the ALJ's decision bears the 15 burden of showing harm). There was no error in the step two analysis.

1       D. Step Three

2           Plaintiff contends that the ALJ erred by finding that he did not meet Listing 3 12.04 and 12.06 if he were to discontinue substance abuse at Step Three. ECF No.
4 15 at 16.

5           At step three, the ALJ must determine if a claimant's impairments meet or 6 equal a listed impairment. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(iii), 416.920(a)(4)(iii)
7 (2012). The Listing of Impairments "describes for each of the major body systems 8 impairments [which are considered] to be severe enough to prevent an individual 9 from doing any gainful activity, regardless of his or her age, education or work 10 experience." 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1525, 416.925 (2011). To meet a listed 11 impairment, a claimant must establish that he meets each characteristic of a listed 12 impairment relevant to his claim. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1525(d), 416.925(d) (2011). If 13 a claimant meets the listed criteria for disability, he will be found to be disabled.
14 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(iii), 416.920(a)(4)(iii) (2012). The claimant bears the 15 burden of establishing he meets a listing. Burch, 400 F.3d at 683.

16           Here, Plaintiff relies entirely on the argument that the ALJ erred in 17 evaluating the medical evidence related to what impairments and limitations would 18 exist if he stopped substance abuse. ECF No. 15 at 16. Given that the Court has 19 found no error in the ALJ's evaluation of the medical evidence, Plaintiff has not 20

1 established that the ALJ erred in determining that Plaintiff did not meet a Listing at 2 Step Three.

3 E. Steps Four and Five

4 Plaintiff contends the ALJ's erred at steps four and five because the ALJ
5 relied upon an RFC and hypothetical that failed to incorporate all of Plaintiff's 6 limitations. ECF No. 15 at 19-20. However, the ALJ's RFC need only include 7 those limitations found credible and supported by substantial evidence. Bayliss, 8 427 F.3d at 1217 ("The hypothetical that the ALJ posed to the VE contained all of 9 the limitations that the ALJ found credible and supported by substantial evidence 10 in the record."). The hypothetical that ultimately serves as the basis for the ALJ's 11 determination, i.e., the hypothetical that is predicated on the ALJ's final RFC 12 assessment, must account for all of the limitations and restrictions of the particular 13 claimant. Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228. "If an ALJ's hypothetical does not reflect all of 14 the claimant's limitations, then the expert's testimony has no evidentiary value to 15 support a finding that the claimant can perform jobs in the national economy." Id.
16 However, the ALJ "is free to accept or reject restrictions in a hypothetical question 17 that are not supported by substantial evidence." Greger v. Barnhart, 464 F.3d 968, 18 973 (9th Cir. 2006). A claimant fails to establish that a step five determination is 19 flawed by simply restating argument that the ALJ improperly discounted certain 20

1 evidence, when the record demonstrates the evidence was properly rejected.

2 Stubbs-Danielson v. Astrue, 539 F.3d 1169, 1175-76 (9th Cir. 2008).

3 Plaintiff's argument is based entirely on the assumption that the ALJ erred in 4 considering the medical opinion evidence and Plaintiff's symptom claims. See 5 Stubbs-Danielson, 539 F.3d at 1175 (challenge to ALJ's step five findings was 6 unavailing where it "simply restates [claimant's] argument that the ALJ's RFC 7 finding did not account for all her limitations"). For reasons discussed throughout 8 this decision, the ALJ's adverse finding regarding Plaintiff's subjective symptom 9 claims and consideration of the medical opinion evidence are legally sufficient and 10 supported by substantial evidence. Thus, the ALJ did not err in assessing the RFC 11 and posed a hypothetical to the vocational expert that incorporated all of the 12 limitations in the ALJ's detailed RFC determination, to which the expert responded 13 that Plaintiff could perform past relevant work. The ALJ properly relied upon this 14 testimony to support the step four and step five determinations. Therefore, the 15 ALJ's determination that Plaintiff was not disabled within the meaning of the 16 Social Security Act was proper and supported by substantial evidence.

17 CONCLUSION

18 Having reviewed the record and the ALJ's findings, this court concludes the 19 ALJ's decision is supported by substantial evidence and free of harmful legal error.
20 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

1 1. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 15, is DENIED.

2 2. Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 16, is GRANTED.

3 3. The Court enter JUDGMENT in favor of Defendant.

4 The District Court Executive is directed to file this Order, provide copies to 5 counsel, and CLOSE THE FILE.
